Seattle, Aug. 24.—Chief Criminal Deputy Sheriff O. K. Bodie today announced Mrs. Ester Hilda Clark, thirty-three, had confessed killing her daughter, Rose, because she "complained too much that she didn't have nice things other girls have."

She was booked first at the county jafi under the name of Ester Olson, her maiden name.

"I thought I was doing her a favor by killing her." Bodia quoted her as saying.

The body of the sixteen-year-old girl, her head besten and her throat cut, Bodia said, was found buried in the brush 200 yards back of their small home.

"Blue Riband" Recaptured

GREAT BRITAIN'S WONDER liner, the Queen Mary, has recaptured for the Cunard Company—now the Cunard-White-Star Line—the "Blue Riband" of the Atlantic. Her time from Cherbourg breakwater to Ambrose lightship is given out officially as four days seven hours and twelve minutes. This appears to have been a defeat of the French liner Normandie's achievement by four hours and a half.

.To the average individual this startling news will not mean much—until he or she re-calls the record of the old mistress of the Atlantic, the Mauretania. Now on the scrap-heap, she held the "blue riband" until superners entered the race. Germany, Italy and France charged into the contest. Their ships set new records. France's Normandie held the new record until Britain's Queen Mary took it away from her by a substantial margin today.

It is not for the landlubber to try to be however, we naturally are very glad to know that British shipbuilding and nautical engineer-ing are still supreme. We are permitted, at least, to dip our editorial flag to Britain's superliner, Queen Mary.

War and Human Nature

WAR IS NOT A UNIVERSAL AND W inevitable product of human nature, de-clares Miss Regina Flannery of the Catholic University of America. Her researches in anthropology have convinced her that: "So far as anthropology can see, peace is just as 'natural' to man as war is. All depends on what man chooses to do with his own nature."

In an essay written for the quarterly journal, Thought, Miss Flannery cites her own first-hand observations among the Cree Indians, who live in the "Big Woods" of northern Canada, around the southern end of Hudson Bay. Despite the fact that these Indians are a primitive people who live by hunting (or perhaps because of that very fact) they are "without even tradi-tions of war and without warlike offensive or defensive weapons." Other primitive peoples, widely scattered over the earth and widely diverse in race, are similarly rooted in the ways of

But peace is "natural" to greater cultures and higher civilizations than theirs, Miss Flannery continues, pointing out the predominantly the peoples of India, despite long history of wars in both lands. The Hindus have held up the ideal of peace ever since the rise of Buddhist and Jainist religious philosophies, and the Chinese, who like to crystallize all their thoughts into proverbs, have a saying: "Good iron is not used for making a nail; good man is not used for ture, whether now or in past centuries, Miss Flannery contends, it is the consequence of what she calls the double ethical code. This code which, of course, has nothing to do with the socalled double standard in personal morals—is the tendency among peoples to make their par-ticular set of rules for social conduct valid within the tribe or nation only, with the tacit proviso that "foreigners don't count."

and certain other offences are world-wide among the most primitive peoples, and have apparently existed as long as the human race has been on values will be as souvenirs. existed as long as the human race has been on the earth.

But at the tribal borders, with many peoples these rules stop. Hospitality toward the stranger, however, is fairly common, and is the first crack in the wall of the double ethical code. As man becomes more civilized, has wider and readier communications with other peoples in other places, the rift becomes wider, other "rights" are extended toward strangers, and more fellow-humans are included within the circle.

But even yet, the double code, "this greybeard survivor from the days of the caves and river drifts," keeps a tenacious hold on the ways of mankind and only through long and patient effort, undiscouraged by slowness of progress within any single human generation, can men of good will eventually hope to dislodge it.

ONE OF THE ENCOURAGING signs from Europe today is the intima-tion that Germany and France are going to tell Spain in no uncertain terms that they will not permit the shipments from their respective countries of anything that may come under the term of armaments.

This is as it should be. If there is one thing, for example, that Great Britain desires it is a friendly understanding between France and Germany. The peace of Europe—indeed, the peace of the world—depends upon it. The question arises: Why should a civil war in Spain endanger the lives of millions outside the borders of that republic?

Another question also should be asked:

Another question also should be asked: by do not Great Britain, France, Germany. Italy, Russia, Belgium and other countries that naturally do not want a new conflagration, tell the Spanish people—the "Left" and the "Right"—that they are ready to meet around the conference table to give of their wisdom in an effort to settle their problem, which is costing so much blood and material treasure?

As we already have said, after what happened between 1914 and 1918, surely there should be some sensible way to adjust different political views other than that of the spilling of blood.

Our Only Security

WHEN COLONEL LINDBERGH W flew alone from New York to Paris he gave the world one of the most spiritually uplifting experiences of the century. There was something about that exploit which made eter-nally visible the triumph of the dauntless spirit of man over a hostile environment. As his silvery plane circled over Paris in the dusk, all shared in that triumph and were uplifted. But we need only turn that flight inside out, as it were, for a clear picture of the sort of thing he was talking about in Berlin the other day, when he warned of the destruction that hangs above our heads unless man shows himself to be more intelligent than he has been lately in his

If another great war should break out, over the land and seas would pass whole flights and squadrons of airplanes, each plane with swollen egg sacs of bombs, and flown with all the skill and individual bravery that marked Lindbergh's lone flight. But circling over Paris, or Berlin, has the mechanical skill to commit hari-kari and lacks the sense to refrain from doing it. Our only security henceforth, Lindbergh reminds us, lies in intelligence. Unless we can bring to the use of airplanes the same intelligence that went into the inventing and perfecting of them, western civilization faces a dark future.

Watching passengers in a railway station, one gets the impression that they are weary-laden and that travel is a laborious task, weary-laden and that travel is a laborious task, whereas the passengers at an airport give the impression that they are all set for a joy-ride, and the atmosphere is electrified with a dash and verve. Tearful farewells that are common occurrences at a railway station are never seen at an airport; the fact that flying makes possble so quick a return robs the separation of much of ta right. But circling over Paris, or Berlin, or London, or New York, the planes would provide no uplift of spirit for anyone. Instead, they would rain down death and destruction.

In a few moments, as Lindbergh said in Berlin, they would destroy things that could never be replaced. The sunlight glinting on their wings would signalize the folly of a race which has the mechanical skill to commit hari-kari and lacks the sense to refrain from doing it.

Much to my regret, however, he left the plane at Spokane, from which city until we got to Minneapolis the next morning at 11 o'clock, there were only three of us on the plane.

ing and it was not until the next night that I discovered that the lights which I thought were "beacons" were in reality only the little lights on the wingtips of the plane.

Twice during the night the co-pilot regaled us with hot coffee from a thermos bottle, and at 6 o'clock the next morning we had a good breakfast at the airport in Miles City, Montana. At Minneapolls, two or three hours later, we had a second breakfast. It was a relief to leave behind the mountains of Montana and the barron shales covered water.

middle west. From Minneapolis to Chicago the flight takes a couple of hours.

The Chicago airport is a veritable beehive. The planes seem to arrive and take off with the speed of underground trains; from that centre a traveler can be in any extremity of the continent in the course of a very few hours.

Boston was my destination, and I was due there about 6 o'clock in the evening—less than twenty-four hours out of Scattle. But chance (or fate) arranged it differently. We were three hours late getting into Chicago, and between Chicago and New York we encountered a thunderstorm, which delayed us another half-hour, and when I arrived at Newark I found that the planes, to Boston had been canceled on account of fog; so that in the end I had to resort to the old dependable train for the last lap of the trip. But even with these delays. I was in Boston within thirty-six hours of leaving Seattle.

BUCHAN'S NEW BOOK

—The Governor-General has just published a new novel entitled "The Island of Sheep." The Yorkshire Post says: "Lord Tweedsmult is probably the greatest living exponent of the literary thriller. He brings to this sometimes despised form of authorship the perfect prose of John Buchan, the historian, and a descriptive power unequalled in the whole history of the thriller. Perhaps it is a pity that such talents are wasted in a book destined to be read in hundreds of railway carriages and thousands of deck chairs. Neverthethousands of deek chairs. Neverthe-less they play no small part in-adorning the tale with continuous, breathless excitement."

Legal Questions

Question: If a person leaves the province owing money, can his prop-erty be seized to cover his debta?

From The Listowel Standard

It is better to right your wrongs while they are young and tender than to murse them until they are old and tough.

Answer: If such person leaves the province with the intention of detrauding his creditors, his property and effects may be seized under writ of attachment.

WEEKLY MARKET REVIEWS

By ALEX PRINGLE

Canadian Press Financial Writer

Toronto, Aug. 24.—The war scare gave Canadian stock markets a moderate shake-down on Priday, the shock coming chiefly by way of New York, It was apparent, from the size of the losses and volume of selling that the setback was more in the nature of a sympathetic drop with New York than a direct response to local fear of an early international clash:

scare.

With a threatened huge influx of corn from Argentina, corn has once more become secondary to wheat, both as to top values and to volume of dealings, although for the week the corn market still displays the steepest relative upturn.

Compared to a week ago, wheat this morning was 1% to 3% cents a bushel higher, corn 2% cents up, oats % to 1½ advanced, and rye at 2% to 3½ advanced.

Provisions were 5 cents to 40 Canadian Press Financial Writer

York markets displayed the main Although in vario weakness, while domestic listing suf-ifered in no great extent. Of the forty-seven losses in the industrial list at the end of the session, thirty-five were limited to 50 cents and less. Over the week the list declined only a point, as measured by the index.

On the Toronto mining board there were no wide declines, except for a drop of $1$ in O'Brien. This issue's rapid advance recently had left it vulnerable to attack and it was bowled over for a 90-cent loss yesterday. Senior golds held all week—so well, in fact, that the war scare dented the gold share index only a point, causing a drop from 142.06 to 140.86.

dented the gold share and the point, causing a drop from 142.06 to 140.86.

A considerable loss suffered by the miscellaneous mines index, about four points, was chiefly accounted for by sharp declines in some of the junior issues. Base metal stocks were moderately heavy, despite the fact some of them would benefit from intensification of the war preparations.

Sections, where the yield heavier than in the south.

Winnipeg, Aug. 24 (Canadian Press)

Trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today saw the final session of a week in which wheat futures values stubborally held close to the dollar mark, and for the most part above it, despite increased hedging sales and lack of export buying.

Strength in Chicago corn proved a specific production of the war preparations.

RADIANT BRIDE

The bride, a petite brunette, was a radiant figure as she entered the church with her father to the strains of the "Lohengrin" bridal chorus. She wore a beautiful wedding gown of fine Chantilly lace, a French model in princess style, the skirt flaring from the waist into a long, graceful train, the bodice having long alim sleeves, tight-fitting to the wrists, with a medieval collar rising high at the back and outlining the V-neck in front.

On the street, her spirits lifted. It was so bright and blue a day; the air had a sort of tonic in it. She lifted her chin and stepped along with animation. She left the mean street could have been held back, but, by mation. She left the mean street with its occasional pallid tree behind her. Ahead, in the dazzling clearness of the distant horizon, she could see the city's towers and spires. New York! She wasn't terrified by it, its vastness and indifference, because she had known it all her life as a friendly place to which one went on happy jaunts to theatre and shops and restaurants. Of course, it was not the same now. She was one of a vast army, struggling for a foothold. She stared out of the window as the train rushed over the bridge, her hands clenched in her mended gloves.

"I must find something," she told herself. "I simply must."
She had the newspaper want ad column in her purse. There would be the agencies first. Experience? No. she hadn't any. But weren't there some things which didn't require experience?

The woman behind the desk shook ther head pleasantly but firmly. The woods, she said to Boots, were full of college girls willing to do anything. Had she tried the department stores? She had heard it was possible to get in over at Lacy's. "Personally," she said, lowering her voice, "we only handle clerical work — high-class stuff, you understand. But Lacy's well, you might say you had a year of college. They like that. They won't investigate."

Lacy's was ten blocks away. Ten long city blocks of crowds, of traffic lights, of milling taxis. Boots walked them briskly, impelled by youth and a fervent hope and ambition.

That would probably have meant his spending a night on a cell cot as a guest of the city of Montreal. What kind of treatment is that for a nine-teen-year-old youngster who rightfully earned his place on the Canadian Olympic team.

No doubt there will be some kind of an explanation made. The ticket may have been misplaced or somebody may have forgot to make the necessary arrangements. The fact still remains that a young Canadian athlete was forced to walk around the streets. of Montreal with no money in his pockets, hungry and without shelter. A complete investigation should be made and somebody should be made and somebody made to answer for the slip-up. It is also hard to understand the attitude of the Ontario Amateur Boxing Commission. They were informed of Pease's plight and calmly remarked that they were helpless to do anything—that it was up to the Olympic officials. And those Olympic officials were on the high seas en route from Europe to Monitreal. After all, Pease was one of Ontario's athletes and at least deserved a helping hand.

Athletes From H.M.S. Apollo and Local Stars Put on Keen Finishes at Macdonald Park on Saturday; Good Attendance: Joe Addison Wins Half-mile

In spite of a light downpour which dampened little the spirits of the large crowd which turned out to witness the excellent pro-gramme of track and field events, the annual Navy Week sports was the annual Navy Week sports at Macdonald Park on Saturday afternoon were a great success. Halfway through the meet the rain tarted, but the crowd shifted to the spacious grandstand where a drier view was obtained of the goings-on. Although the times were slow due to the heavy wet track, some excellent races were run by both the local boys and the athletes from the visiting cruiser Apollo and the Royal Canadian Navy.

Over a public address system the particulars of the runners competing, and the results of the events were ably announced by Bill Herbert. The thrills of the day did not, owever, lie in the track events; in fact, the tug-of-war teams stole the show and at times had the crowd right up on its feet cheering. The right up on its feet cheering. The most grueling track event on the day's programme came in the 880-yards run when Addison came up from behind on the second lap of the grind to over-take the field, some of which had eighty-yard handicaps, and win the event in the good time of two minutes flat.

HANDICAP EVENTS

The handicaps in the sprint events resulted in fairly even finishes, with the field bunched on the straight-away. Fine prizes added to the flavor of the meet and the winners in the various events certainly earned them through their excellent performances.

The kiddles had their share of the glory, too, and in the girls' 75-yards for twelve year-olds and under, little Miss Joan Stewart carried off the honors when she breasted the tape ahead of her fair wee competitors. In the boys' race in the same class, Arthur Young carried off first place. In the 100-yards handicap open were entered the cream of the local sprinters, J. Stewart, young Y.M.C.A. Junior, leading the field composed of Junior, leading the field composed of his clubmen, to best out Porky An-drews and G. Milnes.

The first tug-of-war was taken by the men from H.M.S. Apollo after a hectic struggle with the R.C.N. squad from the haval barracks, while in their tug with the Victoria Police De-partment, the Scole men took the department, the Sooke men took the odd pull to win the tussle

You have to hand it to the St. Louis Cardinals. They're toughest when the chips are down.

For a few hours yesterday, it looked as though the wild-rushing New York Giants had taken the bit in their teeth and the National League lead in their hands by knocking off the Boston Bees in both ends of a doubleheader, 3 to 2 and 6 to 1. Then the Cards came frop hehips in the first game of their twin bill with Pittsburgh to chalk up a 7 to 3 win, and pulled up in the last three innings of the nightcap to earn a 6 to 6 tie and save their first place by

"Navy Born" At The Columbia

"Navy Born." Republic's screen version of Mildred Cram's Cosmopolitan Magazine story, co-starring William Cargan and Claire Dodd, is the feature at the Columbia Theatre for three days. The story revolves around the predicament of Gargan, bachelor naval aviator, with a two-weeks-old son of his dead buddy on his hands. Miss Dodd, as the infant's wealthy young aunt, creates the hilarious complica-tions with her rapidly shifting man ocuvres to locate and obtain the child The thrills come in the fight between Gargan and the girl for control of an airplane which she, pretending to be an amateur, masterfully throws into a deadly spin high in the air. A final thrill comes in the spectacular air race between Gargan's plane and one in which a gangster, mistaking the baby for his own, attempts to fly it across the Canadian line to safety. In the second feature on this pro gramme are Charles Ruggles and June Collyer in "Charley's Aunt."

Simone Simon Coming Here

Even though the list lacked vigor in most departments, there were many advances of fractions to a point or more at the steady close. Trans-ers were around 800,000 shares. The failure of the market to work up any real activity during the morning advance tended to bring out a little late profit taking.

At the same time brokers said little important selling was in evidence and bids "below the market" were rather plentiful.

Business and industrial developments were viewed with satisfaction by economic observers. The better tone of foreign news also helped to stiffen bullish resistance.

Steel stocks merely blinked at the figures of the American Iron & Steel Institute placing current ingot output at 72.5 per cent of capacity, a small gain over the week before.

Dorothy Dix Making Love Is

difficult to get married.

In grandmother's day every pretty girl had dates to burn. Boys flocked around her like bees around a honeypot. Any maiden who did not receive three or four bona fide proposals of marriage before she was out of her teens hung her head in shame and usly of embracing a religious life and entering a convent.

But the modern man not only shies away from the altar so that it takes wild horses to drag him to it, but even has to be bribed, caloled and shanghaled to get him to a party, where he only condescends to dance with the prize beauty and leaves if the supper and champagne are not up to the mark. Moreover, nowadays when you see a girl out with a boy it is even betting that she has hounded him into going with her by repeated calls over the phone, and that she is supplying the car and the tickets.

Girls didn't have to work like coal-heavers in grandmother's time—to get beaux. Men were eager then for feminine companionship and, since no plague has carried off the masculine population by death and girls are better-looking and more charming than ever, grandma can't understand for the life of her why Mary Ellen spends most of her evenings in the bosom of her family, and acts as if she had drawn the capital prize in the lottery when some pimply-faced youth drops in to eat one of her mother's good Sunday night suppers.

As the Good Book says, "A serpent on a rock and the way of a youth with a maid are past all understanding." Yet it is easy to surmise that one of the reasons why girls are less attractive now to men than they used to be is because they have made themselves cheap and men are not bargain-nunters by instinct. The harder a thing is to get, the more eager and determined a man is to have it. So, as long as girls gave a lifelike imitation of running away from them, men pursued them; but when women turned about and began chasing men, men commenced running away from them, and no one can deny that they have made a pretty complete getaway.

Another reason the modern girl is less attractive to men than the girl of the past is because they know her too well. She is no longer glagiorous. She has thrown away her seven veils of mystery and there is nothing about her that piques their imagination and fires their fancy.

No girl in shorts is a goddess to a man. She is just everyday Sally Jane, with knobs for knees, who would wear skirts if she could see herself as others see her, and who is a sort of second-rate imitation little brother and nothing to get excited about or sentimental over.

Then, too, competition in business has got in its deadly work on the boy friends and slain them by the million. It isn't in human nature for a young man to love the girl who is taking his job away from him, or to look with a romantic eye upon one who is climbing the ladder of success faster than he is. Nor is he tempted to take a girl out and show her a good time if she gets a bigger pay envelope than he does and if far better able to pay the check than he is. It takes all of the xick out of it and makes him feel sort of foolish instead of a big, strong man who can take care of the Little Woman.

Still another reason why boys are chary of making dates is because girls have made the high cost of loving prohibitive for the average youth who is working for a small salary. In grandmother's time girls had plenty of beaux because calling on a girl was about the pleasantest and cheapest way of spending an evening. There was jolly conversation and games and music. Mother came in with a chocolate cake or they went into the kitchen and made fudge, and it didn't cost the boy a cent. It wasn't like it is nowadays when a girl comes down when her date arrives with her hat on and saks: "Where do we eat?" And the price of taking a girl out for an evening sends a lad to the beanery for a week.

And then grandmother knew the secret of how to conjure men. She knew how to make them eat out of her hand. That is something that her granddaughter doesn't know. DOROTHY DIX.

Work On Sea Giant To Start This Fall

Sister Ship to Ss. Queen Mary Expected to Be Launched in 1938 and Ready For Atlantic Service Two Years Later

Clydebank, Aug. 24. - Construction on the ueen Mary's sister-ship, which British shipping circles believe will become the world's biggest and fastest liner, is expected to start here early this fall.

She will cost $27,500,000, it was stimated. $2,500,000 more than the

"Since the Queen Mary was designed six years ago," he said. "we have carried out constant, and, we believe, successful work in our experimental tank at Clydebank. We believe that as a result we could now build a boat of similar size to the Queen Mary with engines a duplicte of hers with a still further improvement in performance."

While both the builders and the owners decline to divulge more of their plans or expectations, experts are already prophesying the vessel will reach thirty-six knots, weigh between 83,000 and 85,000 tons, compared with the Normandie's gross tonnage of 82,779, and the Queen Mary's 80,773, and be christened the King George.

Mary's 80.773, and the Queen Mary's 80.773 and be christened the King George.

She will be capable of an average sea-speed of thirty-three knots, experts believe, thus enabling her easily to crack the present Atlantic record. She will also be a few feet longer than both the present leading ocean-giants, they added.

Until her name is officially announced she will be known as the "552," her number on John Brown's books. About 4.000 Scotch workers will be directly employed building her, while many more thousands will be engaged at one time or another on sub-contracts.

Mexico City, Aug. 24.—A decree, awaiting President Lazaro Cardenas signature, provided today for organization of a government-controlled ateamship line.

The act would organize the Mexican Meli Steamships line, with the scrernment holding 51 per cent of the stock and leaving the remainder under option.

The line would operate between San Francisco and Salina Cruz. Oaxaca. Mexico, carrying freight and passengers. Pour vessels have already been purchased and two others will be placed in service later.

estimated, $2,500,000 more than the estimated, $2,500,000 more than the Queen Mary.

The new British sea-giant will be launched in 1938 and delivered to the owners ready for the Atlantic service early in 1940.

Although many British experts are confident she will exceed both the Queen Mary and Normandie in size and weight the Cunard-White Star Company announced "the new ship will be of approximately the same overall dimensions as the Queen Mary it is not possible to say what her tonnage will be, but it is not likely to differ very much from the Queen Mary's."

An indication the new monarch is expected to be faster than her sister-ship was given recently, however, by Lord Aberconway, chairman of John Brown & Company, which will construct the vessel in the same berth here that housed the Queen Mary.

was splendid throughout," said Capt. W T. Kinley, and through the Nussia, in telling of his latest voyage to the Orient, which he completed when he brought his ship into Victoria this morning.

"There was no damage done, however," he said. "We reduced speed for about twelve hours and just rode it out. We had to keep the passengers off the decks and close down all portholes."

Aboard the Russia at the time was a large group of women tourists. All the way out they had been hoping for a typhcon, for summer is the time of typhoons. But while it raged and they were forced to keep to their cabinations, they were not so thrilled, although as soon as it was over they expressed themselves as delighted they had been through it. What a story it would make when they returned home!

Bargain Rates

Being Planned

The coming week-end will see in effect another series of excursion rates to up-island points over the lines of the Equimalt and Nanaimo Railway.

The "going" dates will be Priday and Saturday, August 28 and 29, with the return portions of the tickets good until Tueeday, Reptember 1.

These rates will be good to all points on the E and N. lines, and will probably be the last in effect this season.
